APPENDIX D SPREADSHEETS RELATING TO MISCONDUCT IN PUBLIC OFFICE

INTRODUCTION TO APPENDIX D

- 4.1 Appendix D consists of a Microsoft Excel workbook containing two spreadsheets:
 - (1) Sheet 1: Alternative & related offences
 - (2) Sheet 2: Unreported MIPO cases
- 4.2 We refer to misconduct in public office as "MIPO" for convenience. The contents of these spreadsheets are as follows.

SHEET 1: ALTERNATIVE & RELATED OFFENCES

- 4.3 Sheet 1 contains a list of offences that our research demonstrates are either:
 - (1) charged alongside misconduct in public office. This may be either as an alternative or additional related charge for the jury to consider;
 - (2) charged instead of misconduct in public office, in cases where the facts suggest that misconduct in public office could also have been charged; or
 - (3) otherwise closely aligned with misconduct in public office by way of the type of wrongdoing they involve.
- 4.4 We recognise that the offences listed in this table cannot cover every possible alternative or related offence that could be charged either alongside or instead of misconduct in public office. This is because almost any criminal offence, if committed by a public officer "acting as such" could also amount to misconduct in public office.
- 4.5 Instead the offences listed have been chosen as examples of alternative offences that could be charged, either because they are:
 - (1) offences referred to in key legal texts regarding misconduct in public office as potential alternative or related offences;²
 - (2) offences referred to in reported cases commonly cited as authorities for the offence of misconduct in public office;
 - (3) offences referred to in unreported cases identified in our research and listed on sheet 2 and sheet 3; or

One of the elements of the misconduct offence, as identified in AG's Reference (no 3 of 2003) [2004] EWCA Crim 868, [2005] QB 73. See Chapter 2 for a full discussion.

² C.Nicholls and others, Corruption and Misuse of Public Office (2nd ed 2011); J Beggs and H Davies, Police Misconduct, Complaints, and Public Regulation (2009); J Harrison and S Cragg, Police Misconduct: Legal Remedies (3rd ed 2004).

- (4) offences that, in our view, after examination of cases referred to in (2) and (3), could have been considered to be alternative or related offences to misconduct in public office.
- 4.6 The offences listed are categorised and sub-categorised, for ease of reference, in the following way:
 - (1) Statutory offences
 - (a) Types of conduct
 - (i) Abuse of position
 - (ii) Dishonesty
 - (iii) Disclosing/accessing information
 - (iv) Other conduct
 - (b) Types of officer
 - (i) Members of Parliament
 - (ii) Police
 - (iii) Prison staff
 - (iv) Local government officers
 - (v) Electoral officers
 - (vi) Sheriffs
 - (vii) Service personnel
 - (viii) Immigration officers
 - (ix) Justices of the peace
 - (x) Registrars/Clergy
 - (xi) Postal workers
 - (2) Common law offences

SHEET 2: UNREPORTED MIPO CASES

4.7 Sheet 2 contains a non-exhaustive list of unreported cases either identified by our research, or provided to us by specific stakeholders. All of these involve a specific charge of misconduct in public office. This sheet includes reference to any case we have found, or about which we have been informed, since 2005 where there has been a relevant police investigation, irrespective of whether that led to a prosecution. The cases are categorised by the type of public office holder involved.

- 4.8 The remit of this project is limited to reform of the criminal offence, so we have not recorded cases where there have been investigations by an independent complaints or disciplinary body which did not result in a police investigation.
- 4.9 A list of specific cases has been provided by the National Offender Management Service ("NOMS") and the Independent Police Complaints Commission ("IPCC"). We have also received further information from the CPS regarding a small sample of specific cases that were either prosecuted or investigated.

CAVEAT

4.10 Although we consider that the data information within these spreadsheets is of value and use to our review of misconduct in public office, this information cannot be considered to be a comprehensive collection of either: all the unreported investigations or prosecutions involving scenarios where misconduct in public office could have or has been charged; or all possible alternative or related offences to misconduct in public office. We are reliant on the cases being identified by the media, their being regarded as sufficiently newsworthy, and reported and archived.
